

THE WORLD THIS WEEK

By ROBERT PATTERSON

"Let us work to see that the flags of the Americas fly from pole to pole in the western hemisphere!" In thus dramatic a fashion, Senator Lundeen (Minn.) opened his campaign in Congress last week to have America dispossess European powers, by one means or another, of all their territories in this hemisphere. But friendly critics promptly suggested it might be best for Uncle Sam to set his own house in order first before trying to run the whole western world. And they were right! We need to combat the forces of despair and disunity in our midst. We need to make a fresh and concerted attack on unemployment—ever a good breeding ground of the demagogue and dictator. We need to ignore the appeals of professional hate mongering. The defense of American democracy in the end, as Atty. Gen. Murphy said the other day, will be found in "the wisdom of the people and their determination not to be led on the paths that have taken other people to Communism and Fascism." By uniting in a common will and with a common purpose to defend democracy, and to make it work better than ever before, every American will be fulfilling a historic task. When that job is done, it will be time enough to worry about flags flying from pole to pole!

First aid to California and the giant army of dust bowl refugees she supports comes—at last!—in a proposal by Rep. John H. Tolan. His common-sense suggestion, made to House members last week, provides that when cities, counties or the state, expend funds for indigents who have been within their borders less than a year, they receive an additional allocation of relief money, subtracted from the quota of the state from which the indigent has come. Rep. Tolan hopes, as will most Californians, that this plan will meet the approval of representatives of other states. In all fairness it should. It will take an unjust burden off California's shoulders, and enable other states to share, as they should, some of the load this state has been supporting by herself.

The presence in the House of Representatives of some 70 anti-alien bills gives point to the timely warning made by an American Bar association committee last week: "The dislike and opposition of nearly all Americans to the activities of certain minority groups are leading some of our citizens to employ methods subversive to the American system." This sudden epidemic of measures directed against the alien or the racial minority cannot be lightly ignored. From discrimination against aliens or racial groups—a matter which has nothing to do with suppression of saboteurs and spies—is but a step to discrimination against political minorities, and from that point, but another step to the suppression of free political sentiment in general. If recent history abroad can teach America anything to help her avoid the pitfalls into which other nations have fallen, it is this: political freedom is indivisible. It can't be apportioned among some groups, and withdrawn from others, without paving the way for its withdrawal from everyone. Persecution of minorities, because of race, politics, religion, has ever

Fair Manager

William W. Monahan, former Graduate Manager of the University of California, new General Manager of the California World's Fair. He has been working night and day to bring many new shows to Treasure Island. Work is being speeded in every department for the big opening, May 25th.

Current Events Class Added to Evening School

The adult department of education is daily gaining in interest with an increased enrollment in classes. The registration of adults in educational work is creating a cooperative spirit in the home and is strengthening family life by developing kindred interests between parents and children. At the beginning of the second semester a new class is to be added to the department of adult education, a class in current events. The instructor is Miss Mary Stewart, world traveler and journalist from New York and Washington. Miss Stewart will meet her class, Tuesday, Feb. 6 at 2:30 in the little theater of the high school.

The course will deal with such questions as "What's the news?" Who are the leading men and women of today?" "Why do I like America?" All interested in world affairs, both foreign and domestic, are invited to come. The class will be open to men and women. It will be in the nature of a forum with informal discussions.

Announce Engagement of Their Daughter

The engagement of Miss Jacqueline Rohan to Robert Willis Brydon, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Brydon, has been announced by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Rohan of Budd avenue, but no wedding date has been set.

The acquaintance of the young people is of long standing as they attended the same schools.

Robert began work this week as store room salesman and helper for the Rye Tractor and Equipment company in the 18 hundred block, South First street, San Jose.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kelly celebrated the former's birthday Tuesday evening with a dinner party, at which Mr. and Mrs. Guy Smith were their guests.

been the first chapter of a short, swift drama which ends with the enslavement of the majority by an all-powerful state.

Mark Smith Uninjured In Auto Accident

Mark H. Smith was driver of one of two cars involved in a collision near the intersection of Meridian road and Moorpark avenue early Wednesday afternoon. Both cars crashed into an onion field beside the road.

Smith was reported to have suffered cuts and lacerations of the right leg, but Clifton Miscovich of San Jose escaped without injury.

Highway patrolman Warren McGrury stated that the accident occurred when Miscovich turned into a driveway of the Dinatale home.

Smith, who is the son of Mrs. Mayfield Smith of Dry Creek road, lives on San Jose-Los Gatos road and is widely known here where he grew up and graduated from local schools.

Mrs. Mitchell Host To Pundita Circle Wednesday Aft.

The Quito road home of Mrs. F. Wilbur Mitchell was the meeting place of Pundita Circle yesterday, the hostess being assisted in entertaining by Mrs. D. H. Cramer and Mrs. M. E. Purmort.

At refreshment time the hostesses served buffet style with the president, Mrs. Rose Hanger and Mrs. Purmort presiding at the candle lighted tea table.

Interesting reports of two garden section meetings were given by Miss Helah Laird. Frank Gillis who is spending the winter in Campbell, discussed birds at one of these meetings.

The subject for the days consideration was Shakespeare and response to roll call was quotations from his plays.

The life of Shakespeare and something of the Shakespeare-Bacon authorship controversy was reported by Mrs. Purmort and Mrs. Cramer gave Charles and Mary Lamb's review of the "Prince of Tyre."

The guest day of the club which falls upon the last day of this month will be enjoyed with a luncheon at the Chinese Lantern on West Santa Clara street, followed by a program. The officers are the hostesses for this occasion.

Census Taker Is Busy Here

The census taker has been canvassing the various business enterprises of Campbell during the past two weeks and has about completed this territory. The questionnaire combines points of the sales tax, social security and income tax reports.

The house to house enumeration will begin later and from advance comments made by some who have seen them, call for every item of personal and family import "except what you ate for breakfast."

Mrs. Flora Hutton Called by Death This Week

Mrs. Flora Belle Hutton who had been in failing health for several weeks passed away at the family home on San Tomas road Tuesday.

Flora Belle Brandenburg was born in Butte county but at an early age the family moved to this valley settling near Lawrence station, and then to Campbell some sixty years ago.

She became the bride of Hiram C. Hutton and they have enjoyed 57 years together. He is the only near surviving relative beside a grandson, G. Alan Schuyler, who with his family also lives on San Tomas road. A daughter, Mrs. Alfratta Schuyler passed away a few years ago.

Mrs. Hutton united with the Congregational church in 1904 and has ever been one of its faithful members and an active worker in the women's guild. She also took an active part in grange affairs until recent years.

Funeral services were held this afternoon from the chapel of Amos Williams company and interment was in Los Gatos cemetery. By request of Mrs. Hutton, the Rev. George E. Atkinson of Sebastopol, for many years pastor of the Campbell Congregational church conducted the services, assisted by the Rev. J. H. Bennett.

Kiwanians Hear About Conditions Across Pacific

Personal impressions of conditions in Japan were related by De Witt Portal for the entertainment of local Kiwanians Tuesday. Portal is boxing coach at the San Jose State college and recently accompanied a group of his athletes to the empire of the "Son of Heaven."

He devoted a portion of his talk to experiences of the young men both in the field of sport and in contact with the people of the country.

He also told of the economic conditions and privations that the populace are enduring as a result of the prolonged war in China. The opinion seemed to prevail that Japan was bound to be defeated, and that troops would be withdrawn from Manchuria except to "save face."

The silver anniversary of Kiwanis will be celebrated at next week's meeting at which Ira R. Abbott will preside, and Lieutenant-governor Ernest Crooke of Watsonville will address the club. An invitation has been extended all former members, a number of whom have signified their intention to attend.

This coming Saturday some sixteen members and wives will motor to Modesto for an all-day meeting of the presidents and secretaries of the California-Nevada district. Joseph Tope of Stockton will be installed as the new lieutenant-governor at the evening meeting.

The Campbell club has been signally honored in having two of its members named on committees of the California-Nevada district, Guy E. Farley on

Knowles Remains At Post In County Poultry Ass'n

The Santa Clara county branch of the Poultry Producers of Central California held an important meeting yesterday in San Jose.

J. W. Knowles of Campbell incumbent district director, who has served for several years, was returned by acclamation, and A. G. Ramstad of San Jose, who acted as chairman paid tribute to Knowles' faithful and efficient services.

Officers were present from San Francisco headquarters and reviewed the year's business of the organization which handled 1,133,000 cases of eggs, 5,500,000 pounds of poultry and 200,000 tons of feed during 1939 with credit losses of only a fraction of one per cent.

Odd Fellows Install Officers

Some thirty members of Morning Light lodge, 42, I. O. O. F. including deputy grand master of district 20, Jack Murdoch and his staff will visit Mountain View lodge in district 30 this evening and install its new corps of officers. The Mountain View lodge will return the courtesy here next Thursday.

Prune Growers Meeting Friday

Members of the Prune and Apricot Growers association of Campbell-Los Gatos district are reminded of the meeting tomorrow (Friday) night at the plant office here.

The directors stated many interesting matters are on the agenda, and later coffee and refreshments will be forth coming.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd M. Evans of Van Nuys are arriving today and on their return Saturday will be accompanied by Mrs. Susan B. Evans of Alice avenue, who will make that city her home, although spending some time in Fresno and here.

Club Hears Program On Universities

The history of institutions of higher education in this part of the state as told by Mrs. R. B. Hummel and her committee at Monday's meeting of the Country Woman's club was truly fascinating.

Mrs. Hummel's family for three generations have been so intimately connected with the establishment of schools, in attending them and being members of their faculties that she brought to life and animation, historical facts and figures.

A program hour limited the possibility of considering all, but the College of the Pacific, the first educational institution in California was naturally given "first place."

The establishment and growth of the San Jose Normal school to the present State college, and the founding of Leland Stanford, Jr. University were entertainingly related.

To Mrs. Sue Boyce, a newer member, living on North Harrison avenue, had been accorded the privilege of discussing the University of California, with its numerous campuses, from the Scripps Institute of Oceanography at La Jolla, University of California at Los Angeles, to Berkeley and Davis Agricultural college and others in San Francisco.

Mrs. Frank Shepard told of her interesting work with Americanization classes in the adult education department of the Campbell high school.

Lack of time prevented hearing of the long history of the University of Santa Clara and of Mills college.

Richard Boyce, son of Mrs. Boyce and student at San Jose State very graciously came out between classes and sang a group of selections, "He Was a Prince," "Friend of Mine," and "On The Road To Mandalay" and responded to an encore with "Now Sleeps The Crimson Petal." Mrs. John M. Brunswick was his accompanist.

Mrs. W. R. Morgan, presiding over the business meeting, named Mrs. R. H. Hyde, Mrs. L. J. Carboni, and Mrs. W. F. Grattan to investigate and report on types and prices of chairs to replace part of those in the community room.

Mrs. G. Kidward was elected to membership.

On Feb. 5, the club will observe Men's night with a "Fiesta" which begins with a supper. A charge of thirty-five cents will be made to pay expenses and reservations must be made with members of the committee, as soon as possible.

Mrs. H. W. Jensen and Mrs. F. L. Howes assisted in arranging the many lovely bouquets of snowdrops, heather, calla and torch lilies, and acacia.

At the meeting of the club last week, Miss Winifred Grizzle had a very attractive display of Indian baskets and other articles given her by the Klamath Indians when she was teaching in that district, and which she explained.

Bruckart's Washington Digest

'Pressure Groups' Already Are Worrying Members of Congress

New Deal Agencies, Seekers After Justice and Promoters of Various Movements Active as Usual; Old Age Pensions, Unemployment Insurance Not Neglected.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—About the time congress reconvenes each year, the national capital is deluged with what have come to be known as "pressure groups." It is a poor description. I believe most of them can be called "selfish groups" for the reason that the self-righteous individuals who lead (or promote) movements or causes or demands for justice usually have jobs of their own at stake.

They want to keep their followers happy, especially the saps who contribute hard-earned dimes or dollars so that their representative or their delegation may put up a good front in the city of Washington.

Any way, it is the open season for them, again. They are busier than a hive of bees. They are engaged in the annual invasion upon senators and representatives and among the numerous New Deal agencies, seeking justice, urging help for those whose liberties are being trampled into the mud, appealing for this and that and the other.

There are the usual spokesmen for corporations and groups of corporations. They, too, are seekers after justice. They are no more selfish than the lesser racketeers. Those fellows, however, have a different kind of stake in the results. The seekers after individual justice, Bruckart doesn't believe it is possible so many new injustices could have arisen.

Few are able to analyze the situation.

those who urge maintenance of "civil liberties," etc., usually are concerned with keeping themselves in their jobs, while the seekers after justice for the corporations and business interests are trying to preserve their own material fortunes.

May Be Just Tuning Up For the Election Campaigns

There is, however, something disturbing about this year's invasion. It seems to be utterly impossible that so many new injustices could have arisen within the last year. There always has been a considerable amount of this low form of high pressure around Washington, but the increased number of seekers after justice this year would seem to prove that the whole country has gone to pieces. It may be, of course, that they are tuning up for the election campaigns.

Seriously, however, few persons have been able to analyze the situation. Some suggest that the current trek of seekers after justice results from the fact that the national government has become the focal point for "relief" from everything since the depression fell upon us in 1930. Others feel that a sense of futility about life, itself, has crept into this country from the lands where dictators hold a human life to be nothing more than a chattel.

If either of these answers is correct, we have a dangerous condition on our hands. It is the defeatist attitude.

It represents a decaying civilization and national leaders had better wake up to what it means.

Now, lest someone charge me with having changed my tune from several years ago, I want to recall that I once feebly attempted to pin a senator's ears back for seeking legislation to make everyone a lobbyist. That senator was Hugo Black, who now writes binding legal opinions as a member of the Supreme court of the United States instead of blabbing for hours on the floor of the senate. I maintain that everyone has the right of petition to any government agency. What I am trying to do here, however, is to show that there are so many more "petitioners" now than heretofore and to find the reason for it.

Many Seekers After Justice in Washington

Of course, most of these movements will not get very far. They will not get as far, in fact, as when I used to crawl under the corner for eggs out on the farm. But there are enough dissatisfied and discouraged folks throughout the country to pay the freight—and the hotel bills—for an extraordinarily large number ber of seekers after justice in Washington.

It is astonishing to see the lengths to which some of them will go. For example, there is one great church organization that sought to force the census bureau to include in the forthcoming census certain questions that would have given that church a powerful leverage in the future administration of government affairs, according to well-authenticated reports. The church representative tried for weeks to high pressure the census officials into inclusion of three questions. He made some threats about the consequences of their refusal. The government attorney to whom the census officials submitted the question had the guts to say "no" and that was the census bureau answer.

It was a despicable thing, however, and illustrates the dangers inherent in the conditions I have tried to describe.

The old age pension movement and the unemployment compensation movement and the other "welfare" movements are represented in full force.

Other Groups Are Working For Gifts From Government

There are half a dozen other groups around town, working for one thing or another in the shape of gifts from the government. Nearly all of them have found something wrong with the present social security law, but they do not agree on what is wrong with it. The whole circumstance rather convinces me that maybe the law ought to be tossed overboard. I doubt that the federal government can ever administer such law. There probably is little possibility that any such law ever can be made workable on a national basis. Some of the dreamy New Dealers who conceived it have faded out of Washington officialdom already and have left their baby for somebody else to nurse to maturity. The one service they performed was to the New Deal finances, because the original program has brought six or seven hundred million dollars into the federal treasury—and it has been spent.

Organized labor has its representatives on the scene in a big way. Both the Congress of Industrial Organizations, which is headed by John L. Lewis, and the American Federation of Labor, which is headed by William Green, have national headquarters here. What is a poor politician going to do, however, when Lewis and Green are fighting each other and seldom, if ever, agree upon what changes must be made in the national labor relations act.

The labor row may get more than just an ordinary airing during the session of congress now under way.

I have written heretofore about the special house committee investigation of the National Labor Relations board. Exposures by that committee already have brought demands for the ousting of Commissioner Smith and Chairman Madden. Commissioner Leiserson, appointed only a few months ago, apparently is seeking to clean up the stinking mess, but the Lewis faction of labor which has dominated the board thus far is making Mr. Leiserson's job pretty difficult. There will be little consideration for the Green faction if Lewis can prevent it.

American Legion Can Really Put on High Pressure

There is an offshoot of organized labor's setup here known as Labor's Non-Partisan league. I don't know what it is supposed to accomplish, but it has a press agent and a staff of "executives" and they all seem to get paid regularly.

The American Legion is getting active again. It wants more government money for the ex-soldiers, and make no mistake about it. The American Legion can really put on high pressure when it sets out to do the job.

I haven't scratched the surface in naming the pressure groups that are to be found here for the current session of congress. There are at least 50 business organizations and trade associations. The purposes of all are the same, namely, advantages for them. The advantages may be in the form of cash such as the pension petitioners and the Legion seek, or advantages that can be turned into cash after the methods of business. In any event, they are all headed down Washington-way. It seems to bode no good at all for the folks who are going to pay the bill, including a national debt that is now $45,000,000,000 or more.

Just Good Food

In her own town and in her time, Aunt Edith was considered a good cook. When prizes were awarded for the best cakes at church fairs, Aunt Edith won her share of them. But she had her bad days, too, when this pie crust was soggy or that cake fell flat. Aunt Edith used to say, "Well, I had good luck with my baking today," and sometimes she said, "I don't know why, but my sponge cake isn't near as nice as usual, this time." Luck played quite a part in the success or failure of one's cooking and baking, in those days! There isn't any mystery about cooking and baking today; this "four-point plan" eliminates the element of chance, and insures uniform results, day after day: 1, tested recipes; 2, accurate measurements; 3, proper methods of mixing; 4, correct temperature for cooking and baking.

Reliable recipes and good ingredients are available by the score. When you've found the ones you like, stick to them! Marked measuring cups and spoons have done away with the old time "pinch" of this, and "smidgin" of that, and directions for mixing are a part of every tested recipe. Thermometers of every kind insure the proper temperature for cooking and baking; thermometers for deep fat frying eliminate grease-soaked doughnuts or croquettes; there'll be no sticky, runny frostings or candy that won't "set," when the cooking is done with candy thermometers; meat thermometers mean roasts that are cooked to just the right degree of "doneness"; and oven thermometers are practically indispensable for the countless baking jobs involved in feeding a family. You'll find the recipes below meet the requirements of the four-point plan. You'll want to add them to your file of tested recipes for "Just Good Food."

Silver Cake.

(Makes 2 9-inch layers)

2½ cups cake flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter
1½ cups sugar
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon almond extract
4 egg whites (stiffly beaten)

Sift together the flour, baking powder, and salt. Cream the butter, and add 1 cup of the sugar gradually, beating until smooth and fluffy. Add the dry ingredients to the creamed mixture, alternately with the milk. Add flavoring. Beat the egg whites until stiff but not dry, and gradually beat in the remaining ½ cup of sugar. Fold into the cake batter. Bake in 2 greased 9-inch layer cake pans in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) for 25 to 30 minutes.

Boiled Icing.

2½ cups granulated sugar
½ cup light corn syrup
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup water
2 egg whites
1 teaspoon almond extract

Cook sugar, corn syrup, salt and water together to the firm ball stage (250 degrees). Pour the hot syrup slowly into the well-beaten egg whites, beating constantly. Add almond extract and continue beating until the frosting will hold its shape when tossed over the back of a spoon. Should icing become too stiff to manipulate easily, a small amount of hot water may be added.

Lemon Apple Cake Filling.

Pare and grate one large, tart apple. (There should be 1 cup of grated pulp.) Add 2 tablespoons of lemon rind grated, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, beaten, and 1 tablespoon of quick-cooking tapioca. Cook over hot water until thick and clear—about 15 minutes. Cool, and spread generously between the layers of a cake. The filling is especially good in white cake.

Liver Croquettes.

(Makes 10-12 croquettes)

¾ pound beef liver
1 teaspoon baking powder
Boiling water
2 tablespoons onion (grated)
1 cup fine bread crumbs (moistened with 2 tablespoons water)
½ cup thick white sauce
2 eggs (well beaten)
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Cover liver with boiling water to which baking powder has been added. Cook a few minutes until liver begins to get tender. Remove from water, cut off tough skin or connective tissue, then grind. Mix with bread crumbs, white sauce, and eggs well beaten. Season to taste and cool. Shape into small ball croquettes. Fry in deep fat (375 degrees) until golden brown. Drain on unglazed paper. Serve at once with hot tomato sauce. If desired, croquettes may be dipped in crumbs, egg, then crumbs again before deep frying.

Lemon Meringue Pie.

1 cup sugar
¼ cup cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup cold water
¾ cup boiling water
3 egg yolks
1 tablespoon butter
¼ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon lemon rind (grated)
Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt. Add cold water; stir until smooth. Add boiling water and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is clear and thick. Cook 3 minutes longer. Beat egg yolks; stir cooked mixture into them. Add remaining ingredients, return to flame and cook 1 minute. Pour immediately into baked pie shell. Top with meringue.

Meringue.

3 egg whites
6 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
Beat egg whites partially; then add sugar slowly, beating until mixture is stiff. Bake in slow oven (300 degrees) for 18 minutes.

Apple Sauce Doughnuts.

2 tablespoons shortening
1½ cups brown sugar
2 eggs (beaten)
1 cup apple sauce
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¾ cups bread flour
4 teaspoons baking powder

Cream shortening and add sugar; blend thoroughly. Add the eggs. Combine apple sauce, salt, soda, and spices, and add to first mixture. Sift together the flour and baking powder, and add. Roll out to ¼ inch thickness on well-floured board. Cut in circles and fry in deep fat (365 degrees) until brown. Drain and roll in confectioners' sugar.

★ It's an Ill Illness—

MADELEINE CARROLL has the grandest bunch of fan mail in all Hollywood. It comes from France, from a group of French children who are living in her chateau in the country, secluded from the danger of Paris' air raids and gas attacks. The children take time from their studies and games to write to Miss Carroll, who reads their letters as she rests between scenes of "My Son, My Son!"

The famous Brighton Belle pulled out of Hollywood the other day for scenes in that same picture. The station, however, was a replica of the famous Victoria station, the train was a replica of the Brighton Belle, which covers the 62 miles between London and Brighton in 40 minutes, and the men who filled it were extras, not British Tommies.

But to many who watched, the atmosphere was the same as it would have been in the original setting. Producer Edward Small could not shoot the scene in London because of the present war, but in portraying a scene that dates back to the last one he brought to California, for a moment, all the feeling that fills the railway stations of Europe in these times, as trains filled with soldiers leave for the front.

A case of appendicitis was responsible for the March of Time's exclusive film of the island of Guam. Victor Jurgens, the 26-year-old camera man who last year filmed the March of Time's memorable motion picture story on Japan, was stricken with appendicitis while on his way to Guam; he was operated on at sea by navy surgeons, recuperated at Guam, and spent his time filming all aspects of civil and military life on the important little island. It is part of the new release, "Crisis in the Pacific," and is one of the best films the M. of T. has given us.

"Four Wives" proves that it's possible for a sequel to live up to the reputation established by a popular film. People liked "Four Daughters" so much that it seemed unlikely that the picture carrying the story along could be anything but a disappointment. "Four Wives" is so well done that it will make new friends for the family it portrays so engagingly.

Kay Francis will appear in "It's a Date" as Deanna Durbin's mother—a very glamorous mother, an actress. Norma Shearer may have a mother role, too, in the film version of the popular novel, "Escape." But since the mother in "Escape"—who is also a famous actress, by the way—is middle aged and has a grown son, it seems likely that the story will be rewritten for Miss Shearer's benefit.

By a strange coincidence, Patsy Montana, "cowgirl sweetheart" of radio station WLS, Chicago, goes on the air every morning at exactly the same time as her brother does at station KSOO in Sioux Falls, S. D. It's rather hard on their proud mother—not only do they broadcast at the same hour, but it's 6:15 a. m.

Dave Elman will never have a seal on his "Hobby Lobby" program again if he can help it. The one he had recently cost him about $35. It had to be fed pieces of fish, frequently. The supply of fish, which had seemed ample, disappeared in no time, and Elman had to keep sending out to restaurants near the Columbia playhouse for more. The restaurants in that part of New York are far from cheap; the fact that the fish was for a seal instead of a human being didn't affect the price. So, if your hobby has anything to do with seals, don't try to land on the Elman program; at least, not until he has forgotten how expensive fish can be.

GAS SO BAD CROWDS HEART

"My bowels were so sluggish and my stomach so bad I was just miserable. Sometimes gas bloated me until it seemed to crowd my heart. I tried Adierka. Oh, what relief. The first dose worked like magic. Adierka removed the gas and waste matter and my stomach felt so good."—Mrs. S. A. McAmis. If gas in your stomach and bowels from constipation bloats you up until you gasp for breath, take a tablespoonful of Adierka and notice how the stomach GAS is relieved almost at once. Adierka often moves the bowels in less than two hours. Adierka is BOTH carminative and cathartic, containing five carminatives to warm and soothe the stomach and expel GAS, and three cathartics to clear the bowels and relieve intestinal nerve pressure.

Prologue to Love

Autumn selected a half-opened pink rose from a vase on her dressing table and drew it through the lapel of her jacket. The effect was chastely sweet, she decided. Well, one had to contemplate the trivial details if one kept going at all—especially when the important things of life seemed bent on one's undoing. Bruce Landor might just possibly call while she was away—no, no, there must be an end to such thoughts as that! She tightened her lips as she heard Hannah's voice calling her from the foot of the stairs. That had been Florian's car, then, that she had heard entering the driveway.

"I'll be down in a moment, Hannah," she called back, and hastily dabbed a powder puff to the shadows under her eyes.

She had almost convinced herself that she was gay when she descended the stairway and approached the drawing room door. On the threshold, she paused abruptly and checked the greeting that was ready on her lips. The young man who rose to meet her was not Florian, but Bruce Landor.

"Hello, Autumn," he said quietly as he came toward her. "I was afraid I might not find you at home."

She felt the wild, hot flush that covered her cheeks. "Why—Bruce! I had no idea it was you. I was expecting Florian."

In her confusion she knew, of course, that she had stumbled wretchedly there.

"I'll not stay more than a minute, Autumn," he said, with a diffidence that brought her a quick marveling of incredulity.

"Oh, please!" she breathed. "Sit down—until Florian comes, at any rate."

What on earth was she saying? She felt as if her wits had left her completely. What she had just said, in effect, was that he might leave the moment Florian arrived. But perhaps Bruce would not care to meet Florian—after their last encounter.

She seated herself and Bruce took a chair near her. Somehow she could not bring herself to glance directly at him in her sharp awareness of the distraught look on his face. Every instinct of her being, alive to his nearness once more, informed her that Bruce Landor had been suffering even as she herself had suffered.

"I had hoped you might come," she found herself saying, the words stumbling out recklessly.

He darted a quick look at her. "Had you, really? I—I wasn't sure you would care one way or the other."

"Oh!" She was not sure whether or not she had spoken. Her fingers twined tightly together in her lap. "I dropped over to say good-by, Autumn," Bruce went on. "Tom Willmar says you are planning to leave for England within a few days."

"I haven't set the time yet," Autumn replied. "It won't be for another ten days, anyway."

"I am going into the hills for a couple of weeks," he continued. "I'm leaving early in the morning. You'll probably be gone before I get back."

Her voice, when she spoke again, seemed to limp like some injured thing. "Oh," she said, "it was nice of you to come."

He opened his cigarette case and offered it to her. She was obliged to make her fingers rigid in order to control their trembling as she held the cigarette while Bruce lit it for her.

"I came, Autumn," he said at last, his voice strangely tense, "because I did not want you to leave with the feeling that—that we are not friends."

A desire to give way to tears almost overwhelmed her as she looked at him now and recognized what it meant for him to speak so frankly. She could have gone to him in that moment and wept in his arms.

"I have had no such feeling, Bruce," she said with some difficulty. "I couldn't blame you if you had," he said. "I think I told you—one night—that we could not be friends."

She smiled at him but did not speak, smiled frozenly, in a silence that was unbearable.

"I wanted you to know, before you left, that we shall always be friends—because we must be. I had dinner with Hector the other night."

"He told me so," Autumn said. "I heard the whole story—our whole story," Bruce went on, with evident emotion. "I wish you had told it to me before."

Autumn lifted her hands toward him slightly in a gesture of appeal. "I wanted to tell you, Bruce, but you must know why I could not."

"I understand that perfectly, Autumn. I should have felt the same about it myself—and would probably have acted as you did."

She forced herself to look squarely into his eyes. "It has all been terrible—for both of us."

"Forget it, then," Bruce said firmly. "What's past—is past!"

As he spoke, a car drove up before the door and came abruptly to a stop. Bruce got up and walked toward the window.

"That must be Florian now," Autumn said.

"It is," Bruce told her. "I'll be on my way."

He came toward her and held out his hand. She slipped her hand into his and thought in swift panic that she was losing him now, forever.

"Did you mean what you said—that the past is past?" she asked him hurriedly, as Florian's footfall sounded at the door.

Before he could reply, Florian had hailed them from the doorway. Bruce drew back a step and Autumn turned to meet Florian, who was coming toward them, his usual easy self, his hand extended.

"Hello, folks!" he greeted them. "Great to see you again, Autumn! And you, too, Bruce! How's the big sheep man? Gosh, I haven't seen you for an age!"

"The last time we met—" Bruce began, but Florian interrupted him. "Say, the last time you spoke to me—you had murder in your heart."

"I admit it," Bruce said with a smile. "You're great on that defending-a-woman's-fair-name stuff, Bruce. You'll get a reputation if you're not careful. You looked ready to kill me that night—kill me with your two hands, as they say in the thrillers."

"I know I was," Bruce admitted. "I owe you both an apology for what I thought that night."

"Don't spoil it, now," Florian admonished him. "You know, you really should have lived in the days when knights were bold—and all that rot—when running a man through was just part of the day's work."

He laughed at Bruce and then turned to Autumn. "Give us a drink, Autumn. I'm as dry as an old salt mine."

"Sorry I can't stay with you and join in one," Bruce said. "I've got to get into the hills first thing in the morning and I've got a lot to do before dark."

"Sorry," Florian replied. "I was hoping we might have you down at the ranch for a little party this weekend. Autumn is coming down to help us celebrate her going away. In fact, Lin told me she intends to telephone you tonight about it."

"I'd like to go," Bruce assured him, "but I can't put off the trip another day. Tell Lin for me, will you? I'll not be home to take her call."

"You're not leaving tonight?" "No, but I'll be staying up at the cabin in the ravine tonight," Bruce replied. "I have some work to do up there on some new corals I'm putting in."

"Well, business is business," Florian observed, "and I've had enough of it to last me for a month. How about that little drink, Autumn?"

"I'll say good-by, then," Bruce said, and gave Autumn his hand once more.

Autumn held his hand for a moment without speaking, then turned away as Bruce started for the door.

"Call me up when you come out of the hills," Florian suggested as Bruce waved him a farewell.

"Right!" Bruce replied and was gone.

Florian turned to Autumn as the door closed. "Come along, darling—one drink and we'll hit the trail."

Autumn brought the ingredients and permitted Florian to mix them. He kept up an incessant chatter concerning his trip to Vancouver and the scores of small interests that had occupied him since their last meeting. Autumn did her best to listen but found it impossible to keep her mind on what he was saying.

When at last Florian filled the glasses and handed one to Autumn, she sipped it once and then set it aside.

"Come on, darling," Florian urged. "We'll have to be making tracks."

She looked at him. "I can't go with you, Florian," she told him.

"What!" "I'm sorry," she replied, "but something has come up—since you telephoned. I've got to stay here tonight."

Florian was puzzled. He knew from her manner that there was no use in urging her to come with him. She had made up her mind.

"That's rough on me," he said, "but you've become a woman of affairs, and there isn't much I can do about it, I suppose."

"There's nothing anyone can do—about me," she said, "except myself."

Florian was silent for a moment. Then he helped himself to another drink and lifted it in his hand, regarding it thoughtfully. At last he looked at her over the rim of the glass.

"You know, Autumn," he said slowly, "I have a hunch you will not go to England at all."

"I don't know, Florian," she admitted. "You don't want to go," he told her.

"You know I don't." "I thought as much," he said, lifting his glass. "Well—here's luck!"

Autumn lifted her glass and drank with him. When she set it aside once more, she got to her feet.

"You are going to stay for dinner," she announced abruptly, and in spite of his protests she went to the kitchen to confer with Hannah.

The sound of Florian's car on the highway was still audible to Autumn as she hurried to her room and began removing her white linen suit. She changed quickly to her black riding clothes and fastened a bright green scarf about her throat, her hands trembling with an unaccountable excitement.

Her flight down the stairs and out of the house brought from old Hannah a mere despairing click of the tongue. She had long since given up the struggle of trying to cope with the vagaries of her young mistress.

The sun had gone and the new moon had cut a barely perceptible silver curve in the pale sky as Autumn mounted her horse and turned him westward. She was glad, shamelessly, that her gaze fell full upon it, and neither over her right shoulder nor over her left.

Beneath the serene dome of evening the mountains had drawn into their blue secrecy. The drowsy murmur of the range drifted toward her and overwhelmed her senses with its prophecy of fulfillment.

Bruce had told Florian that he would not be at home. He would be in his cabin. She turned from the trail and rode over the hills straight in the direction of the ravine. As she came to the white birches and looked ahead, she saw the cabin among the trees, almost hidden in the dusk. There was no light in the window, and her heart fell at the thought that he might not be here, after all. If he had already gone—

She rode up the narrow trail and dismounted among the birches, leaving her horse to graze as she approached the door. She did not knock, but pushed the screen door quietly open and stepped within.

Bruce was on his knees in the middle of the floor, packing a heavy box with supplies. He looked up quickly, then got to his feet and faced her in the shimmering gloom of the place. She retreated a step and leaned her back against the frame of the doorway.

For a moment neither spoke. Then he stepped toward her.

"Autumn!" he said, his voice quick with excitement.

"You did not answer my question—this afternoon," she said.

"What question?" he replied.

Autumn strove to speak but her voice failed her. Bruce came and stood looking down at her.

"What question?" he repeated.

"Did you mean it—when you said—the past is past?"

"I meant—just that!" he told her. "Forever?"

"Forever—and ever!"

She looked at him for a moment before she spoke again.

"And you told me once—that I should never come here again," she said, smiling up at him. "Did you mean that, too?"

The slender furrow deepened in either cheek as he leaned toward her.

"I meant that, too," he said. "I meant it—then."

She caught her hat suddenly from her head and flung it across the room.

"I'm here!" she said. "That's why I've come."

(THE END)

Phonetics of Egyptians

Revealed in Documents

Egyptian, a tongue heard from before the days of the pyramids down to the Middle Ages but unspoken for the last 900 years, is giving up the secrets of sounds familiar to Tutankhamen, Moses and his followers and Cleopatra, through research in Coptic documents at the University of Michigan.

While many of the writings of the Egyptians have been preserved from the past, on stone and papyrus, the spoken language was replaced by Greek during the years of Greek and Roman power. It was revived later and as Coptic it persisted until the Tenth century. Scholars have been able to translate the written language with exactitude, but have never been able to do more than guess vaguely at how the tongue of the pyramid builders sounded when spoken.

The clues to the Egyptian spoken word are being traced at the University of Michigan by Prof. William H. Worrell, specialist in Coptic. "Copt" is the name now applied to the Egyptian people since their adoption of Christianity, although Christianity is not at present the dominant religion of Egypt. Centuries ago, while Egyptian was still spoken, these people developed a method of writing Greek in Egyptian, for everyday practical purposes and to translate Greek religious texts.

To do this the Copts took the Greek alphabet, added six Egyptian sounds and used the combination as a Coptic alphabet to transcribe the current language of the time. In his detective work for forgotten sounds Professor Worrell uses the science of phonetics, which tells what sounds may be formed in the human mouth and throat and how, and a broad study of all the dialects of Coptic Arabic and Greek both of the present and as they were spoken and written in ancient days. By starting with sounds used today in related languages, closely observing spelling variations and words borrowed from other tongues, it is possible to trace individual sounds backward in time by processes now known to be scientifically accurate, finally arriving at forms silent for centuries.

Lumbermen Utilize All 'Waste' Products

Making something out of nothing comes within shooting distance of describing what lumbermen and their scientific staffs are doing toward utilizing the waste products of logging and sawmills.

The national forest service has estimated that "only 25 per cent of our present producing forest is saw timber"; that is to say, only a quarter of what is left of the great forests that once covered so large a part of the country is capable of being sawed into merchantable lumber.

Official statistics show that the forest land of the United States comprises 495,000,000 acres, of which 39 per cent are located in the South and 26 per cent in the West. But for use in the production of merchantable lumber the western area contains 79 per cent of the total saw timber and nine-tenths of the old growth of the remaining forests. In short, the figures show that the great remaining reservoir of saw timber in the country is the western area.

The lumber industry of the west and northwest has been particularly active in carrying on scientific research to discover ways and means to utilize the logging and sawmill wastes as raw products for industrial purposes. And, according to Dr. H. K. Benson, head of the department of chemical engineering, University of Washington, some very interesting products have resulted in transforming forest wood, logging waste and sawmill waste into commodities.

"The processing of wood into manufactured products to take the place of lumber," he explains, "may consist of heating the finely divided wood with high pressure steam and suddenly releasing and exploding the wood into small resultant fibers which in turn may be compressed into boards of various degrees of density and uses."

One of the new waste products described by Dr. Benson transforms shredded sawmill waste into what is known as "artificial stone." Another process takes sawdust and with suitable machinery compresses it into the semblance of a log about six inches in diameter. Its surface is waterproofed and certain chemicals are added and this product has become popular for fireplaces and open-grate heaters. The chemicals impart various colors to the flames as the log continues to burn.

The same process may be applied to boards. The darker types are made from sawdust compressed at high pressure and temperature so that partial decomposition takes place, resulting in an artificial mahogany.

In northern California a low-grade board containing resinous material is changed into a high-grade board by subjecting it to a method by which the resin is removed by a vapor solvent process. In a Washington mill low grade $18 lumber is changed into high-grade $32 lumber by punching out the knots, which make it low grade, and filling the knotholes with glued-in counterparts. This job is done so efficiently that it is practically impossible to see where the new pieces have been inserted.

Chair Set of Flowers

Pattern 6429

A basket crocheted in one piece—flower medallions repeated and joined with a few leaves added. Sew them together to make this attractive chair set. The medallions alone make a matching scarf. Pattern 6429 contains instructions for set; illustration of it and stitches; materials needed.

On a Dollar Bill

The design and inscriptions on our one dollar bill are taken from the reverse side of the Great Seal of the United States, adopted in June, 1782. The two Latin mottoes translated read "He (God) favors our undertakings" and "A new order of things."

The pyramid is an unfinished one, emblematic of the unfinished republic. Above is an all-seeing eye surrounded by light, to indicate the Deity. The other part of the design shows an eagle holding an olive branch and 13 arrows.

Here's a Red-Letter Day Dessert

FAMILIES cherish as red letter days the occasions when a dessert they really love to eat puts in an appearance. Every day, of course, can't be a red letter day—but when luscious fresh peaches are in season the housewife's batting average in champion desserts is likely to reach a new high. Here are two contributions to that happy state of affairs:

Peach Tarts Glacé
6 fresh peaches, sliced, or 3 cups sliced peaches
½ cup sugar
1 package orange-flavored gelatin
1½ cups warm water
Dash of salt
1 cup cream, whipped
8 baked 2½-inch tart shells
Combine peaches and sugar and let stand 10 minutes. Dissolve gelatin in warm water. Add salt and pour over peaches. Chill until gelatin begins to thicken. Fold 4 tablespoons thickened gelatin into whipped cream. Chill. Place layer of whipped cream in bottom of each tart shell. Chill about 10 minutes. Cover with layer of jelly peaches, arranging slices in attractive design. Add thickened gelatin to fill tart.

Peach and Grape Temptation
1 package raspberry-flavored gelatin
1 pint warm water
1 cup halved white grapes, seeded
1 cup diced peaches

Dissolve gelatin in warm water. Chill. When slightly thickened, fold in fruit. Turn into ring mold. Chill until firm. Unmold. Serves 8.

Mrs. H. H. Person Concludes Visit

Mrs. Horace H. Person who had been visiting in Campbell for nearly two weeks left Wednesday for San Francisco where she will spend a short time with her son Horace, Jr., and family. After another short visit with the L. R. Gillis family in Sacramento she will return to Portland, where her husband is in charge of an insurance business.

While here Mrs. Person was house guest of Mrs. Dan W. Clark for a few days and then of Mrs. E. R. Kennedy. Former friends entertained at social affairs in her honor.

Holds Office In Pre-legal Club

Elected secretary-treasurer of the Pre-legal club at San Jose State college was Carl Noddin of Campbell. He will hold the office for the winter quarter.

Noddin was active in band work and held several student offices when he attended Campbell Union high school. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Noddin of Route 2, Orland.

A Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Place of Gilman avenue became the parents of a daughter, born Jan. 7 at O'Connor sanitarium. The new arrival has been registered in the county records as Bobbie Jo Place.

Broadway Hit Playing In City

S. F. THEATERGOERS HAVE TREAT IN PRODUCTION, "I MARRIED AN ANGEL" AT CURRAN, TWO WEEKS

One of the most important musical productions to visit the Pacific coast in many seasons is Dwight Deere Wiman's New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia success, "I Married An Angel," which is playing the Curran theater in San Francisco for a limited engagement of two weeks, which started Sunday night, Jan. 14.

A company of 95 people appear in the musical playing in San Francisco, headed by such well-known Broadway stars as Dennis King, Vivienne Segal and Karen van Ryn. It also includes Bobbe Arnst, Norman Roland and Dan Dailey, Jr. There is one of the most attractive and talented choruses that Broadway has sent on tour in many years.

"I Married an Angel" is one of the most important and successful productions that Mr. Wiman has made in his highly successful career as a Broadway producer. For one solid year it packed the Shubert theater in New York city and later on in Chicago duplicated its New York success by playing to absolute capacity for eight weeks. And so great was the demand for it in the mid-western city that the show has been booked back there for an extended engagement in the spring.

Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart have added to their already noteworthy record as masters of musical comedy making in the concoction of this effervescent musical fable from the light comedy of John Vaszary and Mr. Wiman has given it one of his most opulent productions. And Jo Mielziner has provided it with some of the most unique and astounding stage settings and mechanical effects that it requires an entire day to put it together in each city where the show plays. To add to the general lustre John Hambelton has provided some of the most beautiful and colorful costumes the stage has presented in many a day.

It has been a long time since theatergoers outside of New York, Chicago and other of the larger metropolitan cities have had the opportunity of seeing such an impressive array of glamorous girls as appear in the chorus of "I Married An Angel," and they have been expertly trained by George Balanchine, Broadway and Hollywood master of choreography.

U. S. Marine Corps Seeks Good Men

During 1940, the United States Marine corps will accept a large number of desirable applicants. At present, those qualified, either local or transient, may be accepted immediately, according to Harvey I. Diamond, gunnery sergeant, U. S. Marines, in charge of recruiting, Room 228, Post Office building, San Jose.

The pay of an enlisted marine ranges from $21 to $157.50 per month, according to rank and length of service, in addition to board, lodging, clothing, medical and dental attention. Approximately 84 per cent of the enlisted personnel are in higher pay grades as non-commissioned officers, privates first class and specialist's duty. Additional information may be obtained at the local post office or at the above mentioned recruiting office.

Many Sign Up for Whisker Contest

Several aspirants for prizes in the whisker growing contest which ends on Feb. 22, have registered with Lowell Benson, secretary of the chamber of commerce which sponsors Old Settler's day. Others may still sign up, but must be free of hirsute adornment at the time. Plans for other features of the days entertainment are progressing. The Footlighters have begun rehearsals of the play to be presented that evening, and committees are arranging other items of the program.

WRITTEN AND EDITED BY STUDENTS OF CAMPBELL UNION HIGH SCHOOL

Four Student Teachers Aid Faculty At High School

The students and faculty of Campbell high school extend their deepest sympathy to Sidney L. Ancker upon the death of his mother last Sunday, Jan. 14 in San Francisco.

Juniors Planning Varied Activities

The juniors this year have a busy schedule mapped out for themselves. During the Junior home room which met Thursday, Jan. 11, they discussed a number of events which will be held in the hope of raising enough money for the annual Junior-Senior prom to be given in June.

Sixty dollars raised in connection with a junior skating party and the sale of candy at the senior play is already in the junior class fund. A theater party to be held at the Campbell theater with a special program arranged by Mr. Blanco, theater owner, is one of events scheduled for some date during the next school quarter.

A skating party and a junior pay assembly for the student body will also be given before June. The juniors hope to double their sixty dollars before the prom in order to honor the seniors at a truly lovely reception.

Treasure Island Theme of Display

Miss Lewis' two English classes, having just finished the study of "Treasure Island," by Robert Louis Stevenson, are putting on a display this week.

This display shows many of the projects which were made in conjunction with the study of different parts of the book.

Among those who contributed to this display of attractive maps, models of boats, flags, and notebooks were Martha Uyeda, Ernst Eshel, Manuel Contreras, John Williams, Jack Meyer, Clyde Larson and Harvey Wood.

New Drawings Are Exhibited

The pen and ink drawings which were exhibited in the school show case were done by Miss Lewis' advanced art classes. These drawings picture select portions of the school.

Although it is conventional to use the black ink in doing these drawings the Campbell students have been trying out a new brown and white combination which is very attractive.

Girls Play Second Games

Last Thursday, the girls played their second basketball games of the year. In the three games played Nakagawa's Red team defeated Silacci's Blues; Sperno's Blues beat Anderson's Reds; and Bogner's Reds were victorious over McCulloch's Blues. In the standings, the three Red teams are leading the three Blue teams.

Four student teachers from San Jose State are now assisting the faculty at Campbell high. They are Mr. Carlton Lindgren, Mr. Lawrence Firini, Miss Dorothy Cropley, and Mr. Cecil McDonald. They started teaching Jan. 3, and will be relieved of their duties, by four more student teachers, sometime around March 15.

Under Mr. Klassen in the music department is Mr. Lindgren, who is a voice major in the music department at State. While at San Jose State he has been a manager and a member of the Musketeers quartet for four years, and is also a member of the a capella choir. Although he is a major in music, he has also won his block for being on the varsity wrestling team for three years.

Under Mr. Hudson in the physical education department is Mr. Fiorini, physical education major at San Jose State. Mr. Fiorini is at the present time assisting Frank Carroll in coaching the freshman basketball team. He also played a little football last year at San Jose with Coach Hudson, and believes that there should be more gym teachers like Mr. Hudson in high schools today.

Under Miss Howes in the physical education department is a graduate from the University of California, Miss Cropley, who at the present time is taking a general elementary course at State, and also a physical education secondary course there. Miss Cropley has been quite active in the women's association in college, and has been for a number of years a counselor at girls' camps.

Under Mrs. Dart in the commercial department is Mr. McDonald who, having graduated from San Jose State, is again back at school getting his credentials to teach in high schools. He will be teaching the advanced group in book-keeping for some weeks.

C. E. Fellowship Will Be Held

The first fellowship of the Campbell Christian Endeavor will be held at the home of Daryl Farnham, Sunday, Jan. 21.

Lois Bohnett is chairman of the social committee and the members are looking forward to the innovation of the fellowship with great expectation.

FAREWELL TO SOLDIER

The soldier's marching footsteps pound
 Through streets where former guns resound.
 The shouts of children, cries of mothers,
 Cannot drown the echo of others.
 The former heroes look on in sorrow.

They know the pain that will come tomorrow.
 They bow their heads as gay youth passes.
 They know too soon that bloody masses
 Will fast replace the sturdy limbs.
 And so they stand with silent hymns.

LEAP YEAR DANCE

By LLOYD SMITH

LEAP YEAR DANCE

If you should happen to see a boy with a lasso around his neck being dragged to the high school gym tomorrow night by a girl with a determined look in her eye, don't be alarmed.

You needn't telephone the police or call out the marines, just "grin and bear it." In fact, if you're a girl, you might like to follow the example; but if you're a boy, here's a fair warning—you'd better turn on your heels and run in the other direction.

Why? Tomorrow night there will be a Leap Year dance in the gym; and, "as anyone kin plainly see," the gals are going to have a chance to "get their men."

The decoration committee is Richard Pimentel, Katherine Plock, Lydia Lane, Ivan Lobrovich, Carl Arnold. On the refreshment committee is Ethel Mae Van Arsdale, Maurine Weeks, Betty Petersen, Ruth Payne, Betty Van Dorsten. The entertainment committee is James Rambo and Roxana Sidenso.

Campbell Wins Over Mt. View

Campbell high's two championship-bound hoop teams continued their winning ways last Friday night by subduing two hard fighting Mt. View fives 19-14 and 12-11.

The 130 pounders took the opening tip-off to put Campbell in the lead it never relinquished. But both teams put up a stout defense and scoring was nearly impossible near the basket. Campbell's own Jim Harris and Mickey Triana were high point men with six points each. Score, Campbell, 19, Mt. View, 14.

In the finale the Campbell unlimited team walked off the floor with a 12 to 11 victory over a tough but ragged Eagle heavyweight quintet. Both teams missed a good many shots which counted against them in the fourth quarter.

Elwin Meeks is our hero of last week. As the fourth quarter was nearly over and the score tied 11 all, Meeks stepped up to the free-throw line and put in the winning point. He also won high scoring honors for the game with six points.

Reserves Dinner

The Senior Girl Reserves held a pot luck dinner at the home of Lois Bohnett, Tuesday.

The committees in charge were selected by Roxana Sidenso and those assisting her were Mollie Cooley and Viola Coonrad.

The purpose of the meeting was to formulate plans for the coming recognition service.

Social Study Class Follows Events

Mr. Ancker's social studies III class is nearing the completion of their second of a series of notebooks.

The first, a unit on France from the revolution to Napoleon III, was completed before the holidays.

This one is concerned with the development of Germany, Russia, and Italy, and is carried up to the beginning of the World war.

To keep in touch with current happenings, the students listen to and discuss the radio program, "Town Meeting of the Air."

A radio, which was purchased recently, also helps keep the students abreast of the times.

"But Miss Nielsen,
 My work I do not know.
 Can't you postpone the test
 For reasons I now show?"

Candidates for Offices Launch 1940 Campaigns

Literary Club Membership Is Increasing

The Poetry club is rapidly increasing in size and at least one new person attends every meeting. Hazel Morrell was made a member at the last meeting.

The purpose of the organization is to improve the individual ability of all members and to criticize their work. Anyone interested in poetry may attend the meetings and become a member.

The group meets each Friday noon in the room of Mrs. Rae, the adviser. Following a regular business meeting, the poems are read and discussed before disclosing the author's name. This makes the criticism unbiased and helpful.

Choir Sings For Club

Monday night the a capella choir of Campbell high entertained at a meeting of the Los Gatos chapter of the Eastern Star. Miss Howes, Campbell's girls' physical education teacher, is worthy matron of the order. The program after the meeting was carried out to the theme of "Campbell night." The committee in charge of this program was Mrs. Willa Fish, chairman; Ray Fish, assistant chairman; Mrs. Sarah DeSelle, Mrs. Anna Sawyer, and Alice Walton, all of Campbell.

Mr. Klassen led the a capella choir in six group numbers, after which Tony Conetto, accompanied by Lois Frisch at the piano, sang "Little Gray Home In the West." Betty York played a piano solo, "Macedowell Polonaise."

Student Wins Poetry Prize

Mary Ono, Campbell high student has won fourth place in a poetry contest sponsored recently by the New World Sun, a San Francisco newspaper. Mary is a member of the poetry club here at Campbell. She received a photograph album and a personal note of congratulation from the editor for her prize in the contest.

CYO Business Meeting Held

The usual meeting of the Catholic Youth organization was held last Thursday in St. Lucy's hall.

It was decided that letters containing a list of the club activities be mailed to the parents of the members.

Both boys and girls basketball teams will start practice soon.

A food sale will be held at Field's grocery store Saturday, Jan. 20, by the Junior Girl Reserves.

The girls wish to raise money to support their program for the rest of the year, and would appreciate the cooperation of the entire community.

MEEKS, FARNHAM, SIDENSO AND ROBERTSON SEEK PRESIDENCY

Candidates for student body offices at Campbell high officially launched their campaigns in a student body meeting held Tuesday, Jan. 16. Each candidate was sponsored by another student who delivers his speech of nomination and acts as general manager of his campaign.

Running for President

Elwin Meeks is being sponsored by Glen Guttormsen, who explained that Elwin has been very active in sports, especially in football and basketball.

Campus canteen manager, Paul Farnham, is sponsored by Jim Harris, who maintained that Paul has a good business head, something needed in a president.

The only girl candidate, Hi Sparks editor, Phyllis Sidenso, has for her sponsor Betty Bunda, present secretary of the student body. Phyllis was president of her freshman class and she took a leading part in the senior play.

Donald Robertson, many times president of his home room, is being sponsored by Don Martin. Robertson at present is vice president of the senior class.

The following persons are running for vice president:

Mickey Triana was sponsored by Renso Orsi, who included in his talk three words describing his "candidate" as having leadership, sportsmanship, and citizenship. A freshman, Richard Benevento, added a few points to Renso's speech.

Jay Keesling, a lead in the senior play, is being sponsored by Paul Farnham. Jay is a member of the Hi Y and has a good idea of how to arrange programs.

The three candidates running for secretary are:

Betty York, who is sponsored by Mary Ono. Betty has been on the scholarship federation for all of her three years in high school, and is secretary of the senior class.

Emma Presto, manager of the Girl's league sport teams is sponsored by Hollis Phillips.

Ethelmae Van Arsdale is being sponsored by Lois Bohnett. Both are cheer leaders.

The candidates will be voted upon Jan. 31 and in the mean time their respective campaigns are going full blast.

League Conducts Evening Service

The Methodist church Sunday evening services were in charge of the Epworth League Jan. 14. It was a service planned especially for the members of the Junior and Senior Leagues.

Those who took part in the service were Harriet Johns, Betty Adamson, Bob Adamson, and Eugene Green. Gladys Larson and Nancie Work sang a duet with Jim de Vaughn accompanying them.

Bill Adamson, former league member, who has joined the U. S. Navy, was a special visitor Sunday.

TIME TO CLEAN HOUSE

The People's World, official organ of the Communist party in California, divides its space almost equally these days between two subjects, apparently miles apart, but possibly not so unrelated as they may seem. Still endeavoring to explain Stalin's craze for world-conquest to skeptical "comrades," who had been told that Communism was founded on brotherly love and worldwide fraternity, the Commie publication devotes half of its space to berating Finland for having attacked Soviet Russia. And most of its remaining columns, curiously enough, are given over to dire warnings that an unspeakable campaign of "economy in relief" will be waged at the forthcoming special session of the legislature—and that an even more outrageous program is threatened, namely, a purge of "red" influences in relief administration. Governor Olson is warned of retaliation if he yields to "Tory taxpayers," liberal Democratic legislators, who have had their eyes opened, are branded as traitors, and radical pressure groups are instructed to get ready to make their influence felt at Sacramento.

There could be no better evidence of the desperate need for a thorough house-cleaning in California's relief organization than the violent outcry of The People's World against it. The bitter denunciations and frantic attempts of the Communist organ to rally its shock troops are ample confirmation of the findings of Senate investigators that radicalism, favoritism, extravagance and political chicanery have made the needy and taxpayers alike victims of a vicious system of trading on human misery that California can no longer condone nor tolerate.

Assemblyman Thomas H. Kuchel of Anaheim correctly points the problem with the statement: "It is a sorry, sordid thing to have the administration of relief in California saturated with politics and alien doctrines. This is a fight against a system under which our taxpayers' monies are being squandered and used by foreign sympathizers to corrupt democracy and break down private enterprise." It is time to clean house. And it is to be hoped that the legislature does it thoroughly!

THE MARCH OF DIMES

To a philanthropic California, Mrs. Alma de Bretteville Spreckels Awl, goes the splendid honor of giving to the national campaign against infantile paralysis perhaps its greatest impetus since the annual March of Dimes fund-raising program was launched. Right at the inception of the 1940 nation-wide drive, which will gather momentum for the finale of President's Birthday Balls, January 30, Mrs. Awl announces the public gift of her world-famous Samarkand hotel property for use as a sanitarium. The value of the million-dollar property is more than half the entire March of Dimes contribution of 1939, when $1,613,985 was raised. But equally valuable is the stimulus to the crusade throughout the west. Until now, the west has had no sanitarium for infantile paralysis treatment and research comparable to the Warm Springs, Ga., establishment where President Roosevelt conquered the disease. Because of Mrs. Awl's gift, Californians will now feel they are contributing more directly to western advance in the common national fight—and will also feel that each, according to his ability to give, must emulate the humanitarian generosity of this California woman.

THE MAN WHO WENT WRONG

Back in Chicago, hard prison life behind him, his drab San Quentin uniform exchanged for a natty business suit, drawing $250 a month on a guaranteed job, is Gilbert H. Beesemyer—only nine years after he began serving a 40-year term for looting the savings and betraying the trust of more people than any other criminal in California history. It is little wonder that his parole has occasioned bitter controversy. Certainly there is much to be said on the side of the indignant honest citizen—who pounds the pavements in search of any sort of work, who would rather starve than steal, and who would welcome a $250 a month job as manna from heaven—when he protests the Beesemyer parole as a travesty on justice.

Yet Beesemyer hasn't been freed from the sentence of his strange unsavory case. He remains under moral sentence of rich man and poor man, of the men who once did business with him as well as those investors he victimized, for committing mankind's unforgivable sin—betrayal of faith.

A man of superior intelligence and imagination, whatever his moral flaws, Beesemyer began serving an immutable life-time sentence the instant he confessed to his associates years ago: "I'm a cheap crook." Never, whatever he may do, can he regain the respect and esteem that he threw away. In that is a moral lesson both homely and terrible in its finality. Benedict Arnold betrayed America's faith—and though the British kept their bargain by paying him off in cash and empty honors, they made no effort to conceal their scorn, and so that traitor died in disgrace and misery.

Beesemyer has left his state, as Benedict Arnold left his country. But he can never be truly free. The length of his physical imprisonment, after all, isn't so important. He will pay the penalty as a prisoner of guilt and remorse, impossible of erasure by himself or by other men, while his life lasts.

NOTE TO ADOLPH HITLER

The man who saved 577 of your sailors from death when they obeyed your order to scuttle the Nazi luxury liner, Columbus, is a Jew.

His name is Harry A. Badt. He commands the U. S. S. Tuscaloosa, by commission of the United States government to defend freedom of conscience, freedom of speech, freedom of press, and freedom of movement for a free people.

Would the commander and men of your ship, Columbus, have had your sanction to rescue and bring home the Jew, Captain Badt, if the situation had been reversed?

WATCH THIS DATE!

Jot down this note, motorists! February 4 is the deadline for paying license and registration fees without penalty! January, month of forecasts, resolutions, and bills, brings dunning notices aplenty—2,791,215 of them!—to California's huge motoring public. And the public's payment of them will pour a great silvery stream of nineteen million dollars into the state treasury during the next four weeks. The total sum will run to even more than that unless every motorist goes shopping for his orange-and-black 1940 license promptly. Avoid the fine and save your funds! Remember that red letter day, March 15, is just around the corner. You'll need 'em.

REDS IN THE RED

And now a third Russian division has been wiped out by the Finns, bringing to at least 50,000 the number of Russians slain during the last three weeks. If this sort of thing keeps up, it will put Earl Browder back in the headlines again—asking contributions for a Russian relief fund!

PLENTY MORE TO DO

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

California's big-hearted, open-handed spenders of other people's money—money taken from the flattened pocketbooks of debt-burdened farmers, business men, workers and householders who are already taxed to the point of desperation—now propose to lower the minimum age for old age pensions from 65 to 60 years.

Governor Olson has made definite announcement that the new proposal to liberalize California's pension program will be submitted to the forthcoming session of the state legislature with his favorable recommendation.

And concurrently, from the state department of finance, comes the announcement that lowering of the age limit will cost California taxpayers approximately $12,000,000 per year, with more than 70,000 persons added to the permanent old age assistance rolls.

Then, as a patent bid for the pension vote, the administration will submit resolutions memorializing congress to inaugurate a pension system of $60 per month for all needy persons over 60. If that scheme were approved, doubtless the next move would be for $80 a month for everybody over 40, or some similar economic absurdity, for recent events have indicated all too plainly that special pleaders for governmental bounty are invariably greedy for more—with little thought or care for those who must foot the bill.

Men in public life in California have a responsibility to all the people of California—a responsibility which includes the welfare of producers and workers, who support the whole government framework, as well as the welfare of the aged, the unemployed and the unemployables.

And they need to ask themselves, before it is too late:

"What earthly good is a Good Samaritan with an empty pocketbook?"

California already pays the highest old age pension in the United States. And it recently spoke out in unmistakable language against impractical and uneconomic pension proposals which would bankrupt the state and its industries by rejecting the Ham and Eggs pension plan by nearly a million majority.

If that mandate of the people is not enough to put an end to any further plunge into squandermania, California public officials might well take a look at Colorado's current financial difficulties—and profit from Colorado's sorry example.

The state of Colorado, some years ago, adopted an old age pension law calling for $45 a month for persons over 60. It might be kept in mind that this is the same eligibility age now proposed in California.

A few weeks ago, as one of the most recent developments in its attempt to avoid bankruptcy, Denver adopted the highest property tax rate in history and enacted three additional nuisance taxes. The property tax has now reached $18.70 on each $1000 of assessed valuation. Each automobile wheel is to bear a tax during 1940, or a minimum of $2 per car; installment plan business houses are to be taxed $50 a quarter; packages of cigarettes and tobacco will be taxed an additional cent (a similar tax has been proposed during recent weeks in California) and virtually every tax has now been applied in Colorado that man has been able to devise.

Desperate state officials in Colorado, compelled by law to attempt to pay $45 per month to everybody over 60, finally have resorted to grabbing public school funds, with the result that its children are being

POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

Many a man, in politics, has tripped over his past utterances!

One of the most celebrated cases, undoubtedly, was that of Upton Sinclair, brilliant writer and impassioned leader of the Epic movement, whose best-sellers of other years came back to haunt and defeat him in the memorable campaign for governor in 1934.

The same debacle which carried Upton Sinclair down, however, raised up one of his Epic lieutenants, who had written no books and made few statements. His name was Culbert L. Olson—and he was elected State Senator from Los Angeles county. Four years later, he was elected Governor of California.

That bit of history is of interest now because Governor Olson, at the special session of the State Legislature, which convenes on Jan. 29, is likely to find that his past utterances have come back to plague him on the vexatious question of relief administration.

The impending battle over state versus local control of relief, which may have a vital bearing on Governor Olson's whole political future, simmers down to this:

Members of the economy bloc and other proponents of returning relief administration to the counties insist that from 25 to 50 per cent can be saved in administrative costs by the change; they also contend that the people back home, knowing whether those who apply for relief are deserving or undeserving, will care for the needy and crack down on the greedy. And they make the further claim that county control will forestall the building of a state "relief machine," dominated by "reds" and political parasites.

Governor Olson, on the other hand, opposes the plan to abolish the State Relief Administration and return supervision to the counties on the ground that it is a move of "old-line reactionaries" to give control of relief to "Republican supervisors;" that it would enable the "vested interests" to dodge their full responsibility to "the underprivileged."

The economy bloc's ace in the hole, however, is that back in 1927 when an almost identical county relief bill was before the Legislature, Mr. Olson, as a member of the State Senate, spoke for it and voted for it. And when the debate opens, a few days hence, the Senate Journal of 1937 will be trotted out, without doubt, and Senator Olson will be quoted as favoring the bill that Governor Olson denounces as a diabolical plot of "reactionaries."

Governor Olson, to get out of the trap, may be compelled to exonerate Senator Olson as a callow youth who was led astray by his associates. All of which points to a family brawl of no mean proportions.

denied decent educational advantages. And its hospitals, insane asylums and other public institutions are now threatened with drastic curtailment unless some new means can be found for gouging money from taxpayers who are already faced with tax-confiscation of their homes and properties.

Yet Colorado, with all its desperate maneuvers, is still unable to pay what its law requires—$45 to every person over 60. In fact, it pays far less than California.

Becomes Bride of Yuba City Man Sunday Afternoon

The marriage of Miss Barbara June Baird, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Preston Baird of this city and James William Trowbridge of Yuba City was solemnized at a lovely candlelight service Sunday afternoon Jan. 7, at the Berkeley home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Frank Orton Gerrett.

In the presence of only immediate relatives, Dr. Harold H. Griffiths of the First Christian church of Berkeley read the marriage rites.

The living room was graced with white flowers and tapers, with delicate pinks in the dining room.

The bride had chosen for her wedding a smart tailored going away costume, with a corsage of orchids.

Miss Eleanor Schnerr of Los Gatos, a life long friend and sorority sister, was the bridesmaid, who also wore an orchid corsage. The groom was attended by Paul Mariana, Jr. of Cupertino, a fellow fraternity member.

The bride has lived in Campbell since her parents moved here to open the Orchard City creamery, although she completed her high school course at Los Gatos where she was a member of the Zeta Rho society and later at the San Jose State college she joined the Ero Sophian society. Her brother Gene Baird resides in Los Gatos.

The groom is the only son of Ross and the late Mrs. Trowbridge who came to Campbell when the Ainsley cannery changed hands. He graduated from the University of California agricultural college at Davis, and his fraternity is Zeta Xi. He is engaged in ranching in Sutter county, near Yuba City, which latter had been the family home prior to coming to Campbell. A new home, just completed, awaited the young people.

Crop and Feed Loans Available

Emergency crop and feed loans for 1940 are now available to farmers in this county, and applications for these loans are now being received at 60 North Second street, San Jose, by Mrs. Marie Kay.

This early opening of the loan program is a part of the plan recently announced by the Farm Credit Administration whereby emergency crop and feed loans are being made available immediately in all areas.

These loans will be made, as in the past, only to farmers whose cash requirements are small and who cannot obtain a loan from any other source, including production credit associations, banks, or other private concerns or individuals.

As in former years, the money loaned will be limited to the applicants necessary cash requirements in preparing and cultivating his 1940 crops or in producing or purchasing feed for his livestock.

Borrowers who obtain loans for the production of cash crops are required to give as security a first lien on the crop financed, or in the case of loans for the purchase or production of feed for livestock, a first lien on the livestock to be fed. Land lords, or others having an interest in the crops to be financed, will be required to waive their claims in favor of the lien of the Farm Credit Administration.

'The Male Animal' Ruth Matteson's Current Show

The New York Sun of January 6, carried on its dramatic page a picture of Ruth Matteson who is appearing opposite Elliot Nugent in "The Male Animal" which opened Jan. 9, at the Cort theater in that city.

Miss Matteson is a Campbell girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Matteson of Union district, who has made an important place for her self in the theatrical world.

Her present vehicle is a comedy by James Thurber and Elliot Nugent, produced by Herman Shumlin.

Miss Matteson's name in private life is Mrs. Arthur Pierson, her husband also being an actor and a playwright.

Tickets for the ball to be held in the civic auditorium in San Jose on Monday, Jan. 29, to raise funds for the fight against infantile paralysis may be purchased from Lowell Benson, secretary of the chamber of commerce.

This party is a county affair, with Fred Volkers heading a large committee representing every community. Funds will be divided half to remain here in the custody of Treasurer Frank Mitchell, manager of the Bank of America for care of local paralytic sufferers and the remainder will be sent to the Infantile Paralysis Foundation, New York to be distributed to hospitals and laboratories throughout the nation for clinical and research work.

The "March of Dimes," sale of buttons at 10 cents each, will be conducted by school children of the county, Saturday, Jan. 27.

Nelson Bros. Take Gilmore Distributorship

Fred B. Keip, San Jose branch manager for the Gilmore Oil company, this week announced an extension of Gilmore's service operations in Santa Clara county with the appointment of Everett and Rudy Nelson as distributors for the west portion of Santa Clara county.

"Our company has found the distributor type of service an effective means of widening operations," said Mr. Keip, "and we are confident that the Nelson Brothers organization will enable us to give our many friends and customers in the Campbell and Los Gatos area an improved type of friendly service."

Nelson Brothers will handle a complete line of Gilmore petroleum products, including Gilmore ethyl and Red Lion gasoline, Blu-Green gasoline, Lion Head motor oil, Gilmore Super Quality lubricants and Gilmore Smacko diesel lubricating oil.

Two pieces of trucking equipment have been purchased, one a new streamlined, chrome-finished gasoline delivery truck, and the second a flat-bed truck, both of which have been painted in the familiar red and cream Gilmore colors.

Rudy Nelson announced that the offices of the distributorship would be located at the Nelson Grain corporation in Campbell, telephone 198, and that they would maintain their present trucking operations under the name of the Nelson Brothers Trucking company.

Both partners were born and raised in Santa Clara county, and were educated in local schools. Rudy Nelson is married, the father of four children, and maintains the family home in Campbell. Everett resides in San Jose with his wife and one child.

How the Thing Started

By IRVIN S. COBB

TWO copy boys on the New York Evening World were having an acrimonious discussion one afternoon as they sat on their bench next to the city editor's desk.

"I guess they never named any towns for you," said one.

"Maybe not," said the other, "but there's a town up yonder in New England named for you, all right."

"What town is that?" asked the first boy, falling into the trap.

"Marblehead."

At this point the opening bow was struck.

COUNSEL IDENTIFIED

During the hearing of a case in an American court counsel confronted each other for the first time. "You dirty, double-crossing four-flusher," snarled one. "I'll show you up for the crooked ape you are." "Oh, yeah!" returned the other. "You needn't take that line with me, you ham-faced liar." At this point the judge intervened. "Now that learned counsel have identified each other, the case will proceed," he announced.

"Husbands," declares a woman writer, "should all wear a ring on their hand." This will come as a welcome change to many who wear one through the nose!

Some people stick to the truth so closely that nobody can get it out of them.

"What would you do if you won $30,000?" asks a correspondent. Nothing, for one year. We always thought exercise reduced flesh—until we saw a woman with a double chin.

The Better Way to Correct Constipation

One way to treat constipation is to endure it first and "cure" it afterward. The other way is to avoid having it by getting at its cause. So why not save yourself those dull headachy days, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you take a simple common-sense "ounce of prevention"?

If your trouble, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, "the better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it regularly—and drink plenty of water—you can not only get regular but keep regular, day after day and month after month! All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Word comes from London that Sir Seymour Hicks, who, last September, became official back-up of British civilians, sailors and soldiers, is exploding laugh bombs all over the kingdom, which eventually may blow down the Siegfried wall like the trumpets of Jericho.

Sir Seymour, who had a similar job in the World War, is England's favorite light comedy actor, a leading producer and actor-manager, a writer of consequence and a rallying point for both masses and classes, as they both claim him as their own. He is 78 years old and last month celebrated his fifty-second year on the stage.

He started life as a call boy in a London theater. His next job was as an undertaker's mite, a hired mourner, sometimes filling in as an emergency pall-bearer and the like. He wore black well and did nicely in his new career, until his memories of the theater obtruded at an unfortunate moment. He was walking solemnly behind a hearse, when a distant band struck up a tune, which carried him back-stage again. He swung open the door of the hearse and called out, "The overture begins now, sir."

That shunted him right back to the theater, which, by all accounts, he never should have left. He has written and produced 64 plays and is the author of eight books of reminiscence, comment and criticism. He was knighted in 1935, and Mayfair made a tremendous fuss over him, with similar cheers from the populace. In the World War he organized concerts and shows for the soldiers and kept up a drum-fire of spirited humor which rated him as the leading empire morale-builder.

DINING with Henry F. Grady many years ago, this writer noted that he had that old-time free-trade religion. He has never back-slid. He is Secretary Hull's Jephthah, girded to smite the Ammonites hip and thigh as they assail the secretary's trade agreements program.

Mr. Grady, 57-year-old Celtic and incurably optimistic specialist in foreign trade, is assistant secretary of state and has taken over the job of expounding and putting forward the agreements. The law authorizing the plan will expire June 12, and the continuation of this trade policy will be an early and exciting kick-off in congress.

Mr. Grady, a San Franciscan, educated at St. Mary's university, Baltimore, is a man of encyclopedic learning in trade matters, a lecturer at many universities, the author of many books and treatises and a member of many learned societies. He boils down a mountain of data and statistics to his vehement insistence that, no matter how we may tinker with tariffs and quotas, the only helpful reality is the flux of good through the international bloodstream.

THE Russian Baltic drive, side-tracked by the Finns, was, according to the meager evidence obtainable, the pet idea of Andrei Zhdanoff, frequently referred to in the last two years as Stalin's possible successor. Later news is that Stalin has other ideas about M. Zhdanoff's future, as the latter takes the rap for the debacle in Finland.

He was designated secretary of the Leningrad Communist party committee on December 16, 1934. That made him a virtual dictator of the Leningrad district, the Pittsburgh of Russia. M. Zhdanoff has been particularly bitter against Britain, and several correspondents have attributed to him the disruption of last summer's negotiations of the allied powers with the Soviets.

He is 43 years old, a Revolutionist since 1912, when he left school to engage in agitation against the czarist government. Until 1917, he was chiefly occupied dodging the police and joined the army as a gerrymander for the Bolsheviks. In the early revolutionary years, he was one of the leading organizers of party propaganda and was thrown into close association with Josef Stalin. It was the beginning of a beautiful friendship, which, quite possibly, the skiing Finns have dynamited. He is of a middle class family, one of the cleverest word-smiths of Red Russia.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LABINE

Lengthy Congress in Prospect Despite FDR Peace Overtures; New Tax Measure Faces Fight

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

CONGRESS: Keynote

"Dear Alben" Barkley settled down for six months in Washington. "We'll be here until June," he told reporters, "but I doubt if there will be much new legislation. There probably will be efforts to amend the Wagner act and the wage-hour law. The reciprocal trade treaty program probably will cause the greatest controversy."

He told no lie there, and President Roosevelt knew it. Striking fast, before the opposition had a chance to open its mouth, the President keynoted the second session of the seventy-sixth congress in a state-of-the-union speech which attacked the "destructive mine-field of trade restrictions." Plumping for renew-three-to-one majority in the senate, and a three-to-two lead in the house. Major issues, aside from the reciprocal trade act and national defense:

1. Whether to raise the national debt limit, now nearing its $45,000,000,000 legal peak.
2. What to do about new tax proposal, such as Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's "certificate plan" (in effect, a processing tax) to pay farm benefits.
3. Whether to amend the Wagner labor relations act, under fire from all sides.
4. Whether to continue Martin Dies' un-Americanism committee.

COMMUNICATIONS: Wire Merger

Western Union maintains 20,000 branch offices employing 43,000 people; Postal Telegraph, its competitor, has 4,400 offices and 14,000 employees. Thanks to air mail, telephone and radio, Western and Postal are both having financial troubles. This month, as a result, came a paradox: While Trust Buster Thurman Arnold was busy breaking up monopolies, the much-concerned federal communications commission recommended to congress that Western and Postal be allowed to consolidate.

INTERNATIONAL: Something in the Wind

It was big news in early January that hardy Finnish troops had cut 16,000 Russians off from their base at Salla; had trapped another division near Suomussalmi; had captured a Russian base at Aittajoki; had repulsed countless shock troops on the Karelian isthmus; had even blasted a Red air base in Estonia.

But the biggest news came from a little Madrid newspaper called Alcazar. Said its editorial: "Finland is defending with its flesh and bravery the treasure of occidental civilization. Fighting so bravely for independence she fights also for all Christianity, and it is inexplicable that after a long month of war she hasn't received tangible aid..."

Looking about them, European observers wondered if the Alcazar plea wasn't being answered. They saw a series of potentially related moves al of his "most-favored-nation" program in which the administration—not congress—has the power to sign trade pacts, he offered this defense: "... it is advisable to provide, at times of emergency, some flexibility to make the general law adjustable to quickly changing conditions."

Only one other concession did he want in 1940, because it is an election year: "I am asking the congress for army and navy increases which are based not on panic but on common sense."

Conservation of resources, protection of national health, extension of social security and the merit system were also mentioned, but in a moderate voice. Only out-and-out political dart was a crack at G. O. P. Hopeful Tom Dewey, who recently accused the New Deal of "defeatism." Said the President: "To warble easy platitudes that if we will only go back to the ways that have failed, everything will be all right—is not courage."

Next day congress got the budget. Items and total:

National defense	$1,800,000,000
Work relief programs	1,300,000,000
Agricultural programs	900,000,000
Public works and investments	1,100,000,000
Pensions, retirements and assistance	1,200,000,000
Interest on the public debt	1,100,000,000
Regular operating	1,000,000,000
Total	$8,400,000,000

This, said the President, was an estimated cut of $675,000,000 from the current fiscal year, while treasury receipts are expected to rise $382,000,000. Estimated net deficit for 1940-41: $2,176,000,000, compared with $3,933,000,000 this year. But to further cut the deficit, Mr. Roosevelt recommended that his $460,000,000 boost in defense costs be paid through new taxes. Commented loyal Sen. Pat Harrison from Mississippi: "It's not easy to raise $460,000,000 right off. I'm not strong on this tax business."

Rolling up its sleeves, congress found the Democrats enjoyed a

NAMES ... in the news

Harry Bridges, West coast C. I. O. leader freed on deportation charges, announced he would seek naturalization "at the earliest possible moment."

Charles Edison, inventor's son, named secretary of the navy, began studying means of speeding up the naval construction program.

Louis (Leopold) Buchalter, sentenced to 14 years in prison for violating the federal narcotics law, heard that New York's District Attorney Thomas Dewey hoped to "put him away for 500 years" on racket charges.

James H. R. Cromwell, economist and husband of Doris Duke, "richest girl in the world," was named U. S. minister to Canada.

John W. Finch, director of the bureau of mines, was requested to resign by Interior Secretary Harold Ickes "because the bureau needs a director who has enough iron in his blood..."

Neville Chamberlain, president of Britain's Midland Salmon and Trout club, wrote his cronies: "I fear that there is little prospect of my finding time for fishing under present conditions."

PAUL EMILE NAGGIAR

that might eventually lead to peace among the allies and Germany, and to a European attack driving the Russian bear to his den. Indications: Isolation. Home from Moscow to London went Ambassador Sir William Seeds to write a white paper on Russo-British relations. Gossip had it that his conversations with Premier Viacheslav Molotov had been stormy, and that he probably wouldn't return. Also homeward bound was Augusto Rosso, Italian ambassador. Left in Moscow, uncomfortable and lonesome, was French Ambassador Paul Emile Naggiar.

Shakeup. The newspaper Petit Parisien reported from Italy that Germany was planning a drastic political reorganization to woo the allies. It would include Adolf Hitler's becoming president, succeeded to the chancellorship by moderate Herman Goerring; purging of radicals like Heinrich Himmler, Joe Goebbels and Dr. Robert Ley; management of foreign affairs by a moderate like Dr. Hans von Mackensen, ambassador to Italy; slackening of relations with Russia and provisional recreation of Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Aid. In an embarrassing spot, Germany announced she would wink at allied shipments of munitions to Finland, but could not tolerate troop movements. Thus it was obvious the Reich would like to see her "ally" (Russia) driven back, yet could not risk exposure to allied troops from the North sea.

Western War

Following custom, there was more horseplay than warfare. The western front was a tomb, but at Buenos Aires German sailors from the scuttled Graf Spee joined their enemies from British battleships in a night of revelry. British preparations included a plan to call 2,000,000 more men to the colors this year, and a report that 20 freighters had been scuttled at the mouth of Scapa Flow. Purpose: To prevent Nazi U-boats from entering the harbor and sinking more ships like Royal Oak.

NEWS QUIZ

Know your news? One hundred is perfect score, and deduct 20 for each question you miss. Score of 60 or more is acceptable.

1. This English peer's daughter, an ardent Hitlerite who has been in Germany since before the war started, returned to England on a stretcher with a revolver bullet in her neck. What's her name?
2. Why did Irish Premier Eamon De Valera ask parliament for dictatorial powers?
3. True or False: Martin Dies has asked congress to discontinue his un-Americanism probe because of ill health and because the justice department is now prosecuting alien "isms."
4. What do the following have in common: Robert Fechner, head of the CCC; Guy Ballard, head of the "Great I Am" cult; several thousand residents of the Turkish earthquake area; the 163rd Russian division on the Finnish front.
5. If the U. S. began taking its decennial census January 2, why hasn't an enumerator knocked on your door yet?

News Quiz Answers

1. Unity Valkyrie Freeman-Mitford.
2. He feared an uprising of the outlawed Irish republican army.
3. False. He asked congress for more funds.
4. They died. Most of the Russian division was killed.
5. The business census started January 1. The regular "nose-count" doesn't start until April 1.

COURTS: Tell It to Congress

Well-timed if its intention was to heighten congressional demands for revision of the Wagner act, a decision by the Supreme court upheld the much-criticized National Labor Relations board on three counts:

- (1) For refusing to place an allegedly company-dominated union on ballots used in a bargaining agency election at the Falk corporation, Milwaukee.
- (2) For designating a C. I. O. union as collective bargaining agency for waterfront workers along the Pacific coast.
- (3) For ordering employees of the Jackson, Mich., power company to vote on the question of affiliation with C. I. O., after a ballot on C. I. O. versus A. F. of L. had brought no majority vote.

These decisions offered no particular commendation of NLRB, however. Commented Justice Harlan Stone: "... this failure (of congress) to provide for a court review (of NLRB decisions) is productive of peculiar hardships..." But these are arguments to be addressed to congress and not to the courts."

TREASURY: Easy Taxes

Tenderly breaking the news that income tax time is just around the corner, Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, soothed taxpayers with the announcement that this year's report forms have been simplified. Instructions, once as complex as the report form itself, have been pared down and shaved of technical phrasing.

POLITICS: Appointments

Fast on the heels of President Roosevelt's judicial and justice appointments came a baker's dozen of explanations. Among them: Attorney General Frank Murphy was named to the Supreme court (a popular appointment) to get him out of the 1940 presidential picture; Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson was reclaimed from obscurity and made attorney general as grooming for a place on the 1940 ticket, probably as vice presidential candidate under Cordell Hull; Judge Francis Biddle of the circuit appeals court (a lifetime job) was boosted to the solicitor generalship to make a place for unpopular Warren Madden, NLRB chairman. Thus were several birds killed with one stone.

Other political news:

- Democratic Chairman James A. Farley announced the national committee would meet in Washington February 5 to select a time and city (probably Chicago) for the 1940 convention. Thus he made the G. O. P. victor in the winter's biggest stalling game, permitting Republicans to hold their convention and name their candidate later.
- Secretary of State Cordell Hull disavowed presidential ambitions and denied knowledge of reports that President Roosevelt had picked him as No. 1 choice for 1940 candidate.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

An old couch goes modern.

WAS there a couch like the picture at the top of this sketch, in the family "sitting room" when you were a child? Let's get it down from the attic, for just see what can be done with it! Properly streamlined it will look like the middle picture.

First paint the front of frame; then cover well up onto the head portion with cotton batting; next use bright cotton upholstery material. Remove stuffing at high end. Now, make box-like end tables like those illustrated. The dotted lines indicate how the couch fits under these box tables and how a partition and shelves are put in the one at the lower end. Paint tables to harmonize with fabric. The final touch is the back and end cushions covered with the upholstery material.

NOTE: Full directions for changing an old iron bed into the latest style, are given in Mrs. Spears' Book No. 3; also step-by-step directions for making "The Rug That Grew Up With the Family." Thirty-two pages of fascinating ideas for Homemakers. Ask for Book 3, enclosing 10 cents in coin to cover cost. Address: Mrs. Spears, Drawer 10, Bedford Hills, New York.

AROUND the HOUSE Items of Interest to the Housewife

When straining the pulp from liquid such as orange juice, if a piece of cheesecloth is placed inside a strainer none of the pulp can go through.

Grape Juice With Grapefruit.—Two tablespoons of grape juice added to a grapefruit after it has been cut gives a delicious flavor and a pretty color.

Crusty french rolls, cut diagonally into slices a fourth of an inch thick, buttered and toasted, make a good salad accompaniment.

Give house plants an occasional feeding of a teaspoonful of bone meal dug into the earth in flower pots.

To remove feathers from ducks, first pick them dry. This leaves a down all over the skin. To remove the down, wring out a large cloth in boiling water and wrap it around the duck for five minutes. Remove the cloth and the down can be wiped off easily with a dry cloth.

Tips of canned asparagus may be removed whole if the bottom instead of the top of can is opened.

To prevent gowns slipping from wooden coathangers, cover the hangers with velvet.

Where There's a Will Things Usually Get Done!

The teacher was examining the pupils in arithmetic.

"Now," he said, "I'll give you one more sum. If a cat falls down a bottomless well, and for every two feet it climbs up it falls down three, how long will it take to get out?"

One boy took a slate, and after filling both sides with a mass of figures, asked for another.

"Good gracious!" snapped the teacher, "haven't you the sense to see the cat will never get out?"

"Don't be in a hurry, sir," replied the boy. "There's plenty of time and heaps more slates. If you wait long enough, I'll bring the little beggar out in Australia."

Creamy Fudge.—For a smoother and creamier fudge, add a teaspoon of cornstarch to each cup of sugar used in making it.

As chocolate burns easily, it is safest to melt it over hot water.

CAN AFFORD GAS HEAT

FIRST CHOICE IN NEW HOMES AND OLD HOMES MADE NEW

In the many new homes you see being built today or old homes being modernized, modern Gas Heating is almost universally preferred and installed. This preference for Gas Heating is based upon cold fact buying reasons of economy due to favorable low gas rates for heating plus the greater efficiency of the newest type of modern gas heating equipment.

In attractive design, in ranges of sizes and low purchase prices, gas heating equipment, from the stylishly smart circulating heaters, wall and floor furnaces and radiators to the new forced-air, winter conditioning basement furnaces meet every household heating requirement and family purse. Year 'round you will find that Gas is the best heating buy.
